Jobseekers Push Unemployment Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record portion of jobseekers drove unemployment up to 7.8 per cent in July, wiping out the steady reduction registered over the last six months, the Labor Department said today.

Despite a sharp increase in employment during July, joblessness rose for the second consecutive month from 7.5 per cent in June and the 1976 low of 7.3 per cent established in May. This returned unemployment to the year's highest level set last January.

There were 7.4 million persons unemployed in July, an increase of 280,000 over June. Women bore the brunt of that increase.

Total employment rose by 400,000 to another new high of 87.9 million. But that gain was offset by a 700,000 increase in the number available civilian workers, who now total a record 95.3 million.

Racial Friction Plaguing S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African police firing automatic weapons clashed for the third consecutive day with black demonstrators in Soweto today.

An African newspaper said a new fatality brought the death toll to seven in deepening antigovernment unrest this week.

Black witnesses said a passenger in a bus being stoned by demonstrators was killed when he dived through a window and landed on his head.

Police said demonstrators set several buses on fire and hijacked two others for roadblocks to prevent fellow blacks from going to work in Johannesburg, where most of Soweto's 1 million inhabitants work.

Viking Pictures May Solve Jam

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists are waiting for two pictures of the Viking lander's crippled arm to see why it stopped delivering Martian soil to the chamber, which tests the dirt for life.

Dr. Priestley Toulmin, head of the inorganic chemical investigation, said preliminary data found at least 34 elements in the soil. The element present in the largest amount was silicon, ranging from 15 to 30 per cent by weight of the sample. Silicon also is the most plentiful element in the earth's crust.

U.S., Iran May Swap Jets for Oil

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The United States and Iran are exploring the possibility of bartering hundreds of jetfighters for oil. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the Shah of Iran will discuss that possibility in two days of talks starting today.

Kissinger flew to Iran from London Thursday night after talks with British Prime Minister James Callaghan on ways to move Rhodesia from white to black rule without bloodshed.

Takeover of Welfare by County Proposed

KINGSTON — Legislator William R. West, R-Dist. 2, will offer a resolution at next Thursday's meeting of the Ulster County Legislature that would put all welfare costs onto the county.

"We now have a situation where some towns are faced with catastrophic costs," the Woodstock legislator said. "It's time to broaden the base and share the cost at the county level."

The resolution would put the payment burden on the county as of next Jan. 1.

Ulster County is now one of only two counties in the state where welfare costs are shared between town and county.

The resolution would not affect the City of Kingston. Any action there would have to be approved by the Kingston Common Council.

"I want to emphasize that there would be no increase in total cost to county taxpayers," West said. "The costs would just be more evenly distributed."

West noted that welfare was not a large dollar problem in the past, but with broadened benefits and programs it has become increasingly burdensome on local taxpayers.

"As these broadened programs become better known, other towns will be hit with the same problems now faced by Woodstock and some others," West predicted.

He said he hoped to bring the situation to a head before the towns prepare their 1977 budgets. Towns now maintaining their own welfare administrative offices would have the option of doing away with them or continuing them under West's proposed legislation.

Woodstock Supervisor Valerie Cadden endorsed West's proposed bill. "It would definitely take the burden off our own budget," she said. "As it is, we have no control over our own budget."

Woodstock, hit perhaps harder than any other Ulster County town by rising welfare costs, closed its welfare office last October and earlier this year refused to pay its welfare bills to the county until alleged abuses in the system were corrected. Mrs. Cadden asked for home rule and meaningful control over the welfare program and charged that county and state agencies running the program do not weed out ineligible and curb abuses.

West drew a parallel with insurance in defending his contention that all welfare costs should be borne by the county. "With insurance, nobody gets too badly hurt," he said.

City Moves to Sell Water in Ulster

New Water Mains Could Cost 59 Spring Lake Users $3,000

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — City water commissioners appear "willing to move" on selling water to 59 families in the Spring Lake area, a move that may become a trial balloon on selling up to one million gallons per day to the Town of Ulster.

However, according to rough cost estimates raised at Thursday night's Kingston Water Board meeting, the Spring Lake families could face paying $3,000 each for new water main construction, not counting their regular water bills.

The residents and the town also would have to go through the legal complexities of forming a water district through which the capital costs would be paid by special assessments on the Spring Lake families.

"We've reached the point where it's now their move," said President Chester A. Baltz, suggesting that the commissioners and Mayor Francis R. Koenig draft a letter to Ulster town officials that Spring Lake service is possible.

However, Baltz said cost estimates are preliminary, and a final draft of studies by city engineering consultants Manganaro Associates of New York City won't be available for several more weeks. Ulster town officials, who have requested buying up to a million gallons of water a day from their city neighbors, are "looking forward to doing business with Kingston" because water service has been difficult in many areas of the sprawling township, Supervisor Carmine Sabino said.

The Spring Lake area, where residents have been seeking alternatives to polluted well water for years, has one of the town's "more critical" water problems, Sabino said.

Supplying Spring Lake would have "no appreciable effect" on Kingston's water supply since only some 30,000 gallons a day would be needed, Water Foreman Joseph P. Woods told the commissioners. The city has a safe yield of some six million gallons per day.

Commissioner Frank C. Sass, wondering how many Ulsterites favor buying water from Kingston, said Spring Lake would be the logical starting point.

"If they can't get approval for an easy district, that's the end of it," Sass said.

He said existing city lines only 400 feet from Spring Lake could be extended to the town border at a minimal cost to Kingston, with an estimated $3,000 a year in new revenue from water usage.

Preliminary estimates on capital improvements on the Spring Lake side hovered around $160,000 for the 59 homes, but the commissioners said that would be for Ulster to decide.

ON THE TRACK

Cases of Legion Illness Are Tapering Off

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Relieved that the American Legion illness is leveling off, scientists broadened their investigation today in an attempt to search for the common thread that might unravel the medical mystery.

A spokesman for the state health department said the official death toll remained at 23. But he said it was expected to climb to 25 later in the day on the basis of investigations of two other apparent illness-related deaths.

Dr. Leonard Bachman, the state health secretary, said the one common link was that all the victims had attended the state American Legion convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia. But doctor detectives were looking for something else to tell them why some Legionnaires were stricken and others escaped.

"I'm afraid we stand without an answer," said Dr. David Sencer, director of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The first laboratory results later today from the CDC were expected to shed further light on the possibility some uncommon virus may be involved. Influenza, and particularly swine flu, was all but eliminated Thursday by state scientists.

"We are assured it is not a highly contagious disease," Sencer said.

The first results from federal laboratory studies of specimens from the victims were expected today from the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. Its tests were expected to confirm a preliminary state report, which all but ruled out swine flu Thursday.

More tissue cultures also were to be harvested at the state virology laboratory in Philadelphia and scientists hoped these would tell more about the possible involvement of viruses in the disease. There was a preliminary indication of some viral activity in three specimens.

With laboratory workers striking out in their initial attempts to find the cause of the disease, epidemiologists had to turn to more subtle areas to find out what happened.

Some worked day and night on the eighth floor of the state's health building, pouring over statistics collected earlier in interviews with patients. The doctors looked for a common denominator that would indicate the cause of the illness.

"At the end point of our investigation, we will have an epidemiologic picture of what occurred, how the agent that produced the disease was transmitted through this group," said Dr. William E. Parkin, the state's chief epidemiologist.

"It will explain why there has been no second wave of cases. That, with the laboratory data, if the laboratory data are significant, should present the entire picture of the outbreak."

Other investigators were searching for anything strange in the environment the Legionnaires encountered at eating and meeting places.

Poisons and noninfluenza viruses were about all that were left on the list of possible causes Thursday. Bacterial diseases had been ruled out earlier.

Laboratory workers were examining brain, kidney, liver and lung specimens from dead victims for possible traces of toxic substances that might have been responsible. These studies sometimes take several weeks and so far showed nothing unusual.

State Legionnaires, meanwhile, were beginning to bury their dead. Commander Joseph V. Adams attended two wakes in two days and Thursday watched as the flag-draped casket of one of the conventiongoers, John B. Ralph, 41, was buried at Williamstown.

"Most families are still in a state of shock," he said. "They can't believe that it happened that fast."

Olive Residents Sue New York City

Bridge Group Wants $10 Million

KINGSTON — A group of Town of Olive residents has filed suit in Ulster County Supreme Court against New York City, asking $10 million in damages caused by closing of the Traver Hollow Bridge.

Bert Breitenberger, chairman of the Traver Hollow Bridge Committee, said a class action suit involving about 30 residents of the West Shokan-Boiceville area had been filed against the city, Mayor Abraham Beame, environmental agency administrator Robert A. Lowe and water resources commissioner Charles Sarpowicz.

"Our suit alleges that the city knew in advance about the condition of the bridge and failed to take any action," Breitenberger said.

The city owns the bridge and is responsible for its maintenance under the 1905 pact that allows it to take water from the Ashokan Reservoir. In July, the state legislature included a $1.3 million item in its supplemental budget to repair the bridge, which was closed as unsafe more than a year ago.

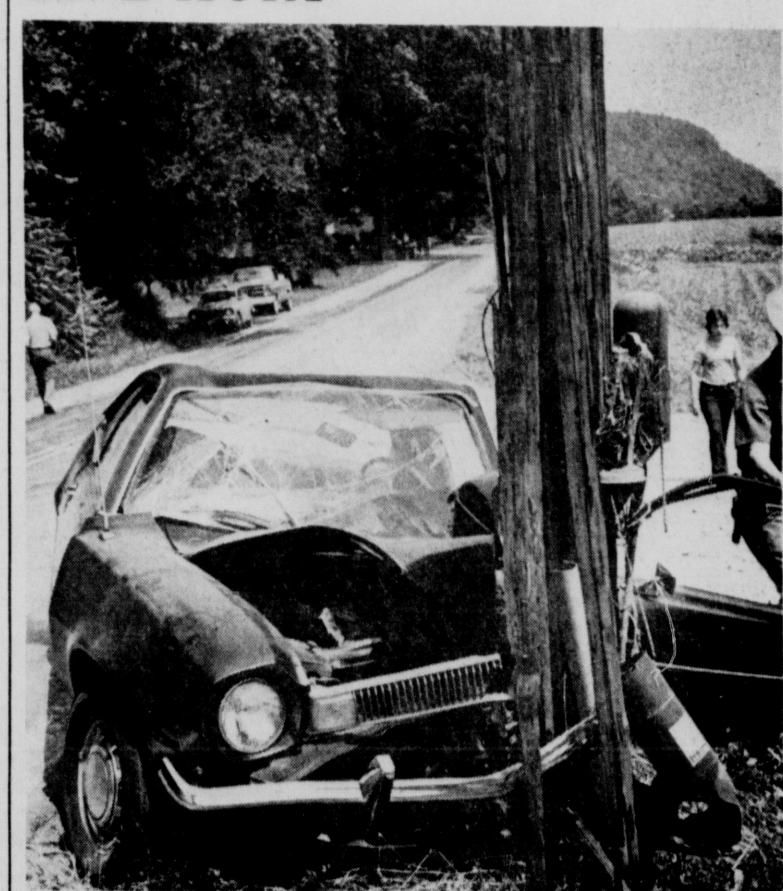

Breitenberger said a second suit, a mandamus action, has been filed asking that the city be forced to furnish "immediate relief" by opening and maintaining a detour route around the closed span, which is on Route 28A between West Shokan and Boiceville. People from the West Shokan area are forced to make a lengthy 14-mile detour across the reservoir's spillway road to reach Boiceville, fire, ambulance and other emergency services are handicapped in reaching the West Shokan area, and the Ontario Central School District has been forced to spend additional funds for busing because the bridge is out of service.

Plaintiffs in the mandamus action against the city are Ellen Roser, Cecelia Scanlon, Susan Schnitzler, Dorothy Henriksen, Claire Kassor and Breitenberger's wife Bernadine. All are members of the bridge committee.

Breitenberger said the suits are expected to be put on the September court calendar.

FIVE HURT

ALBANY — Ulster County will save about $500,000 and the City of Kingston $55,000 over the next four years as a result of the court reform legislation passed by the state legislature and signed by Gov. Hugh Carey last night.

The bill provides for a state takeover of all County, Supreme, Surrogate's, and Family Courts to be completed by 1981. The state will pick up 25 per cent of the city and county court costs beginning next April 1.

But Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-C-40th, who opposed the measure, warned that the result of the bill could be higher court costs and a state tax increase as early as next year.

"Now the guy in Ulster County will want to be paid the same as the guy in Nassau County. We've created a statewide bargaining unit with real muscle," Schermerhorn charged.

"A court paper that costs $4.50 to file in Ulster County might cost $100 in New York City—our court costs should zoom under Governor Carey. Fifty-five per cent of the money will go to the city, and another 25 per cent to Long Island. How does that help upstate?" he asked.

"It's not going to cost more—it's going to cost less," responded Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st. "We'll have a streamlined, unified system of judicial administration."

Counties and cities across the state will save $47.2 million next year, and at least $182 million by 1981.

The measure passed both houses by lopsided margins after superficial debates. The vote was 31-13 in the Senate; 101-30 in the Assembly.

Included in the court reform package are a group of proposed constitutional amendments. These amendments would provide for appointment of Court of Appeals judges by the governor and create a new commission on judicial conduct. Judges on the Court of Appeals, the state's highest judicial body, are now elected for nine-year terms.

The proposed amendments must be passed by the Legislature again next year and submitted to the voters at a referendum before they can be added to the State Constitution.

"The 11-member commission on judicial conduct will have the responsibility to receive complaints and initiate investigations with respect to the performance and qualifications of the justices in the new, unified state system," Hinchey explained.

The commission will have strong disciplinary powers, including the ability to remove judges from the bench, he added. The only appeal would be to the Court of Appeals.

The bill makes no mention of town or village judges, and Sen. Schermerhorn believes that it's the death knell for these part-time local courts.

"It's the end of the justice of the peace courts—you're not talking reform, you're talking the takeover of the J.P. courts," he

Talks Stall In Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Talks to end the strike by municipal hospital workers protesting the layoffs of 1,350 employees were at a standstill today following word that up to an additional 3,000 will be furloughed because of cuts in state Medicaid to hospitals.

The state Department of Health announced Thursday it would cut the 16 hospitals' Medicaid rate by 6.3 per cent, from $200 per patient day to $197. The Health and Hospitals Corp. had said $216 was necessary to prevent further worker dismissals.

The union, representing 18,000 non-medical employees, struck Wednesday to protest layoffs of the 1,350. Local 420 of District 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said it would stay on the picket line until all the pink slips were rescinded.

Lillian Roberts, DC 37 associate director, said, "The rates are just incredible. It was bad enough for them to lay off the 1,350, but another 3,000 is unreal."

Prior to the rate announcement, Mrs. Roberts said she was considering bringing ambulance carpenters, who are members of another DC 37 Local, out on strike with other employees.

Dr. John L. S. Holloman Jr., HHC chairman, said the Medicaid figures, released in Albany, "will definitely force new layoffs."

He also said HHC would sue the state for discrimination for providing municipal hospitals a lower reimbursement than private, nonprofit hospitals, which receive $240 per patient per day.

"The rates will mean between 2,500 and 3,000 more layoffs immediately," said Jack Koretsky, HHC vice president.

"We must go to court to prevent these rates from becoming final," Holloman said. "I don't know if there's any precedent for it, but I believe we can win."

The Medicaid rate announcement caused an indefinite delay in the talks between the HHC, which manages the hospitals, and Local 420. However, both sides said the delay would permit them to evaluate the implications of the cuts.

The hospitals claim they must cut back staff to bring their budgets within strict limits imposed by the state Emergency Financial Control Board.

Civil Service Test Set For Top Rec Post

KINGSTON — Civil service tests for three municipal positions, including director of recreation at $15,000 to $16,000 a year, have been announced for Sept. 18 by the Kingston Civil Service Commission.

Besides the recreation director's job, vacant since Supt. Andrew J. Murphy retired April 2, the three other openings are for sewer maintenance men at an annual salary range of $9,107 to $9,407.

The written test for recreation director will cover recreation administration, fiscal management and budgeting, administrative supervision, and principles and practices of publicity, promotion and public relations.

The position calls for a bachelor's degree in physical education or an associate's degree with two years experience in recreation administration.

Sewer maintenance tests will cover maintenance and construction of waste water systems, interpretation of plans and specifications, excavation and repaving procedures, and supervision.

Two years experience in waste water system maintenance and repair is required.

Candidates must have been city residents at least 30 days before the tests. Final date for filing with the commission office at city hall is Aug. 18.

Baltz Blasts Press Speculation

Water Chief Test Date Set; PE Requirement Retained

KINGSTON — Civil service tests for a new city water superintendent will be held Sept. 18, the Kingston Water Board said Thursday night, and the board has not sought to remove a professional engineer's requirement from the job specifications.

Press speculation that the commissioners would try to eliminate the PE clause drew an angry reaction from Chester A. Baltz, president of the board, who said the matter had not even been considered. "Newspapers should deal in facts, not their own opinions," Baltz told the Freeman.

Since Supt. Edmund T. Cloonan retired Feb. 20, the department has been run by the next three men in command, none of whom has a PE designation.

According to specifications reviewed Thursday night with John J. Hogan, chairman of the Kingston Civil Service Commission, advertisements for candidates will specify a bachelor's degree in civil or sanitary engineering, a PE designation for appointment, five years of "progressively responsible" engineering experience, and city residency.

Although a recent municipal law requiring residency of city employees does not seem to apply to the autonomous water department, the commissioners agreed they want a resident as superintendent.

"I think we're exempted from all angles, but we shouldn't take advantage of it," Commissioner Jack Schienvold said. "Our policy always has been to hire a resident."

Hurley One-Car Crash Leaves Five People Hurt

HURLEY — Five persons were injured in a one-car accident on the Hurley Mountain Road near the Marletown line Thursday, shortly after noon.

Hurley State Police say Herta Jurgeleit, 46, Stone Ridge, attempted to pass a tractor-trailer truck with a double yellow line, went off the left side of the road and struck a utility pole.

Mrs. Jurgeleit was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctors Ambulance and later transferred to Albany Medical Center where she is reported in serious condition with injuries to the left leg, right shoulder and head.

Doris Jurgeleit, 15, and Diane Highland, 16, Stone Ridge, were treated and released at Benedictine. Christine Highland, 15, and Kevin Kortright, 16, Kerhonkson, were both admitted to Benedictine and both are reported in fair condition.

Mrs. Jurgeleit was issued a summons for improper passing by state police.

Robbers Sought

Fishkill State Police are looking for two men who held up the night manager of the Shop Rite store in the Route 9 Mall in Fishkill Thursday night shortly before midnight and made off with about $23,000.

Police said the manager had driven from the store to the Bankers Trust in the same mall to place the night's receipts in the night deposit box when he was approached by a gunman who ordered him to drop the shopping bag containing the money. Another gunman ordered the clerk out of the car and the two robbers fled in the manager's car, according to police.

State police recovered the car on Snook Road in Fishkill. One of the gunmen is described as about five feet tall, black, with a small mustache, missing some front teeth. The other wore a stocking mask and is described as around six feet tall with a muscular build. Both are said to be between the ages of 25 and 35.

Big Blaze

About 75 volunteer fire fighters from Highland, Clintondale and New Paltz fought a fire at an abandoned basket factory from 11:30 p.m. Thursday night until 4:42 a.m. this morning.

Assistant Fire Chief of the Highland Company Louis Miller said the building was completely involved in flames when fire fighters arrived and was destroyed.

The building was close to the road, Miller said, and burned out telephone, power and cablevision lines. Fire fighters reportedly had to pump water from a pond a quarter of a mile away and washdown nearby houses because embers were flying from the burning structure. Miller said no one was injured in the fire, whose cause is undetermined.

'Leaper' Lied

Highland State Police, City of Poughkeepsie Police and the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department searched the Hudson River Thursday night for the body of a man who told a toll collector he was going to jump off the Mid-Hudson Bridge. The man returned to his home unharmed later in the evening.

Police say Anthony Sanicola, 43, Tuckers Corners Road, Highland, told a toll collector at about 10:30 p.m. that he was going to jump off the bridge. The collector called the City of Poughkeepsie Police who found the man's car unoccupied on the bridge. Highland State Police searched the river with their launch and the Dutchess County Sheriff's department also searched with theirs.

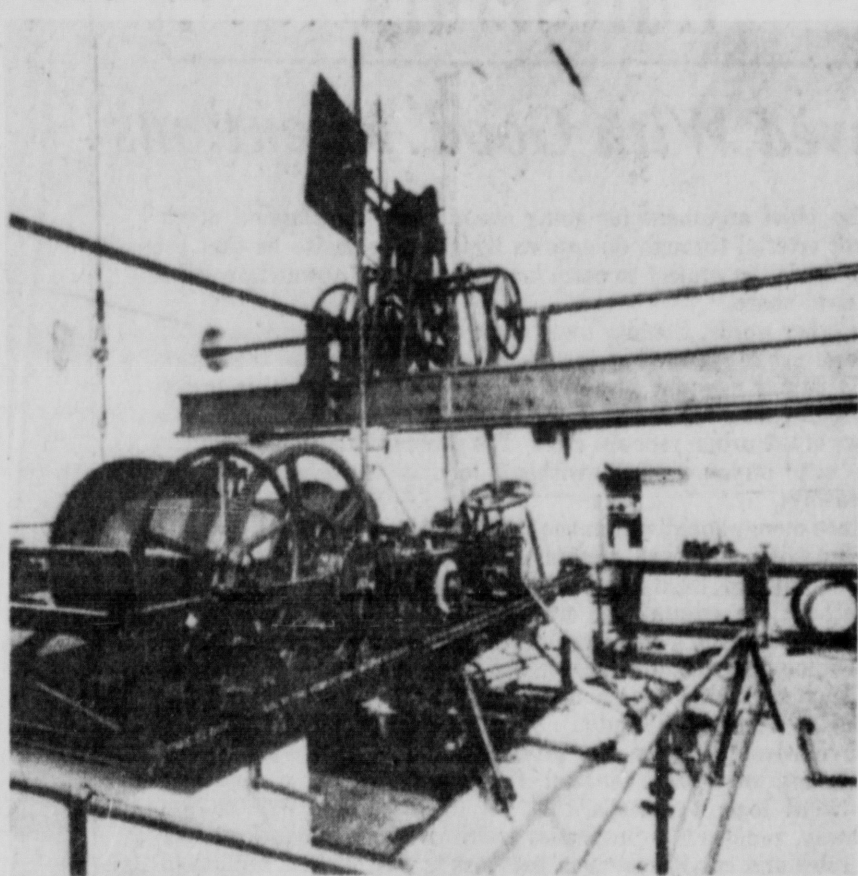

The man's family was notified of the apparent tragedy, but called the police later when Sanicola walked into his home unharmed. Police said Sanicola was too intoxicated to be interviewed.

'Ears' Are On

State Police at Hurley, Kingston and Leeds are now monitoring channel 9 on citizens band radio. Channel 9 is an emergency channel and should not be used for minor motorist assistance calls. Many troopers have their own personal sets in their patrol cars and can be reached on channels 8 and 19.

The state does not provide CB sets for state police. The sets now in the barracks have been donated. The one in the Hurley station was donated by Trooper Jerrold Brainard. Eagle Towing of Highland donated the set in the Highland station and the Hudson Valley CB Club Inc. donated the set at Leeds.

BIG BEN NOT BONGING

The great clockworks which keep Big Ben ticking came to an abrupt halt at 3:45 Thursday afternoon. The movement weighs five tons, and was found to be damaged. It will probably take months to repair. The clock has told Londoners the time from Westminster tower since May 1859.

Sartori Makes Use of ACLD Grant

KINGSTON — Highland resident Thomas Sartori, a physical education teacher in the Kingston public schools, received an award from the Ulster County Association for Children with Learning Disabilities to attend a four-day workshop in New York. The course, given by the New York Institute for Child Development, focused on diet, allergy, hyperactivity, and biochemical imbalances as learning disabilities, with an emphasis on diagnosis and treatment. Sartori, currently director of the summer learning program sponsored by the association, has conducted many workshops on the child with learning disabilities and has been active in the field.

'Missing Link' Skull Is Found

LONDON (UPI) — The skull of a creature, apparently a kind of "missing link" between modern man and his primitive predecessors, who looked like apes yet walked erect, has been found during excavations at Lake Ndutu in Northern Tanzania.

The cranium, uncovered by A. A. Muri, director of antiquities of Tanzania, was turned over to R. J. Clark of Johannesburg University for study and he reported in the current issue of the scientific weekly, Nature, that it had "humanoid" (humanlike) characteristics.

"The cranium is remarkable," he wrote, "in that it seems to form an evolutionary link between Homo erectus pekinensis (Peking Man) and Homo sapiens (living man), having features in common with both."

"It cannot, however, be classified as Homo sapiens and in spite of its strong resemblance to Homo erectus pekinensis its more advanced characteristics and its occurrence in Africa rather than Asia may eventually warrant the creation of a new subspecies of H. erectus to accommodate it.

"This will be determined following full complete comparative studies."

Peking Man had a low forehead, projecting browridges and a heavy jaw. He walked erect, made the most rudimentary tools and used fire.

Heritage Day Is Saturday On Oldest American Street

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz boasts one of the nation's proudest National Historic Landmarks: Huguenot Street, the oldest street in America with the original buildings intact, dating back to 1678. Those who want an extra treat this Bicentennial year are invited to visit Huguenot Street this Saturday on Heritage Day, formerly Stone House

Day. Lovely stone houses, built by the founders of New Paltz, line this street and are open to the public. The tour includes six houses, two churches, special displays and demonstrations; a performance of traditional folk dancing, and a pageant depicting New Paltz during the Revolutionary period.

Paved With Good Intentions

The chief argument for going ahead with the planned north-south arterial through downtown Kingston seems to be that the city needs the project to earn "non-cash credit" toward its urban renewal share.

In other words, the city owes money for its share of the cost of federal urban renewal projects here. And the city has the option of 1) paying cash or, 2) allotting money for other local improvement projects, the costs of which are deducted from the city's share of the urban renewal costs. The general intention is to make the city improve itself without relying entirely on federal giveaways.

Since money spent within the city limits by the state also counts toward these non-cash credits, Kingston can count costs of the arterial toward its share of urban renewal.

Without the arterial, the city probably will either have to pay its urban renewal obligation in cash ($1.5 million or so) or else find some other local improvement project to spend $1.5 million on, such as sewage treatment, recreation facilities, etc., that will count as a non-cash credit.

Obviously, giving up the arterial would require considerable rethinking of urban renewal financing. But it is certainly backward logic to reason that we must build a $36 million highway, remove 100 properties worth over $2 million from the tax rolls and cut Kingston in half just to pay off $1.5 million in urban renewal obligations. Whom is this highway supposed to be for — Kingstonians or the federal government?

There may be other pressing reasons to build the arterial. If the need and potential benefits are great enough, let's hear them and let's go ahead. But building the highway merely to win credit on another project is like painting ourselves into a corner and sawing a hole in the floor to escape through.

Freeman Readers Write

Public Is Stirred Up Enough

Dear Editor:
On July 26 it was announced in the Daily Freeman that Gov. Carey had signed into law a bill authorizing $1.9 million for the development of a computerized "welfare management system" for storing data on eligibility of applicants for social service aid.

The new law prohibits the distribution of any information to unauthorized sources, to protect the confidentiality of information gathered by a local district and stored in the central computer bank.

Now get this — three days later on July 29, the Daily Freeman published almost four pages of legal notices — "Public Notice of Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes 976 State of New York, Ulster County Treasurers Office." I ask you, where is the law that protects the confidentiality of the taxpayer?

On Monday, Aug. 2, 1976, the Daily Freeman headlines "2,000 Back Tax Bills Are Going Up For Sale". Mr. George E. Ackert, Deputy treasurer of Ulster County, said the public newspaper listing gets results: "It sure stirs 'em up. No question about that."

Let us all remember one simple fact. The segment of society that still works with hopes of obtaining a few of the rewards for an honest day's work and takes pride in owning property does not need "stirring up." We are already stirred up!

I have long advocated that if the state and county governments are truly interested in cracking down on welfare cheats, why not treat welfare recipients as equals? Each year in the Daily Freeman publish their names and addresses, telling the "stirred up" taxpayers just who is receiving their money, and how much each recipient is getting per month. I feel quite confident that Mr. Kramer would find that he had adequate funds for investigating and policing welfare recipients.

Tuesday, Aug. 3rd, the Daily Freeman headlines: "County Is Spending Itself Into Red." Mr. Kramer, our welfare commissioner, said his department will run out of money before the end of the year. He estimates $1 to 1.5 million short. Mr. Gray of the highway department says he will also run out of money. Isn't this too bad. When my household runs out of money, we simply stop spending. There just isn't any more money. Then we are told by our government leaders that these programs are "mandated" by federal and state laws. I believe the time has arrived when we as taxpayers should be given a "mandate" stating that we pay no more than a certain percentage of our earnings in taxes.

We taxpayers are facing a 60 per cent increase in property taxes. Ulster County residents have had their taxes raised some 92 per cent between 1975 and 1977. Not all taxpayers are letting their taxes slide for tax advantages. Many of us are finding it harder each year to meet the increased load, with no relief in sight. Is it any wonder people are leaving Ulster County like a bunch of rats jumping a sinking ship?

Stalzer Misinterprets Bible

Dear Editor:
Regarding Mr. Stalzer's letter of Aug. 3rd: I doubt he is much of a history scholar. Whether he believes in the Bible or not, he does not quote it correctly.

Man is not a superior animal. Man is made in the image and likeness of God. Man is made to know, love and serve God, to be happy with Him (God) forever in the next world.

The church has been persecuted from its inception, beginning with Jesus Christ, who was nailed to the cross. Peter, the first Pope, was crucified in an upside-down position. Catacombs (an underground cemetery) were the homes of the first Christians.

The church has been up against pagan philosophical minds, Gnostics, heretics and apologists.

Within ten years of Mahomet's death (he created Islam), they, Muslims, overran the whole Arabian peninsula and were masters of the Persian Empire, of Egypt, Palestine, and Syria.

The church of France has never fully recovered from the Protestant revolt; seminaries destroyed, priests, seminarians driven out of the country, bless the nuns who somehow held the fort.

True, Mr. Stalzer, mistakes have been made. But look closely around you — hasn't the good outshone the bad? The Catholic Church today counts three hundred million members (souls) from every race, nationality, and social class.

If you, Mr. Stalzer, and I, and every living soul practice true justice there can be peace. Let's begin with rendering to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to Almighty God the things that are God's!

Praying for Stalzer

Dear Editor:
I am replying to Mr. Stalzer's letter of Aug. 3rd in reply to mine of July 29th on the issue of right to life of a fetus.

Sir, I am shocked to read your article "Church Tortured Millions" because I do not believe that the destruction of a fetus who would eventually become a human life (a person) is political, but rather a moral issue because it's murder whether or not it was created by accident as you say.

Certainly the Bible says nothing about abortion or contraception, but one of the ten commandments states, "Thou shalt not kill" and this is one of the rules that God gave Moses for the human race on Mount Sinai.

You state the soul is a myth — you attack the Catholic Church, all churches (but Unitarian) as products of the Dark Ages who bless rape, war and retardation and I disagree with you explicitly.

Sir, there are many sinners in the church and Christians (believers) outside the church (any denomination) and the general tone of your letter proves that you are an agnostic — disbelief that God has revealed himself to man.

As an American you have a right to be, think, say what you wish. To challenge (and no one can deny you that right). The same is applicable to me.

I do not wish to continue further rhetoric on the subject.

Points have been made — yours and mine.

I am praying for you.

Is Lebanon Being Sacrificed?

WASHINGTON — Word has reached here of a statement by the Beatitude Khoraihe, the Maronite Patriarch of Antioch and all the East, declaring that what's going on in Lebanon is "neither a civil war nor a war of religion." Released in Paris by Monsignor Ignatius Maroun, secretary-general of Lebanon's assembly of Catholic patriarchs and bishops, it warns us that, "Not even Catholic circles have managed to preserve themselves from the error that the mass media on all sides have, in good faith or by design, orchestrated, willfully exaggerating, shamelessly falsifying reality, in short using all the techniques of deception to blow up and distort what is happening."

What is happening? In his message to the West the Patriarch tells us that, "There exist forces of evil whose interests are served by camouflaging themselves behind the ghastly manifestations of an anachronistic fanaticism." Certainly it is an anachronistic fanaticism which is used to explain the sickening things we see transpiring in that little country which we used to think of as a sort of Middle Eastern Switzerland. They've gone crazy and we don't understand it, seems to be about all most of our media can make out of these fearful killings. "They've got the taste of blood and act as though they like it," an NBC correspondent freshly back from Beirut said on the air the other night.

That perhaps is somewhat better than telling us that these people are replaying Crusader versus Saracen for no known good reason, but not much. The impression you get from the TV coverage is that the heretofore peaceful and civilized Lebanese have been bitten by ticks and come down with a form of homicidal hydrophobia.

French journalists, who may not have a better handle on the situation, at least disguise their ignorance in the rages of sophistication. "Le Monde" reports that the Arabic word being uttered the most frequently is "moukhatat," or plot. The gist of the plot is that Syria has made common cause with the fascists led by a Christian of great wealth, Camille Chamoun, who, while he was president of Lebanon, invited Dwight Eisenhower to land the Marines in an intervention that looks rather more idiotic than diabolic in retrospect.

As the moukhatat is understood in some Middle Eastern circles, Syria is to get a chunk of what was Lebanon in compensation for losing the Golan Heights to the Israelis; Chamoun and his Phalangists are to have a rotten little state that will be called Christian but whose real function will be to charter leaky oil tankers and provide a safe place for the consumption of big, international, smug money deals; the Palestinians, many of whom are Christian by the way, are to join in a capacious common grave those Lebanese who had sufficient fondness for the country not to want to see it dismantled.

The moukhatat is also thought to include, if only passively, such conservative countries as Saudi Arabia. To their credit the Saudis' interest in pursuing the war against Israel seems to grow more nominal with each passing year and with their preoccupation with the burdensome economic problems that only very rich countries have to face. But it is said that a liberal democratic and secular Lebanon isn't the kind of example of a society the Saudis care to see in the Arab world, so that they would have no very energetic objection if Dr. Kissinger has pegged the price of peace as the obliteration of Lebanon and the disappearances of the Palestinian Arabs into the funeral pyre of history.

At least they're dead before they're cremated, but that doesn't impress the conservative Christian Lebanese leader, Raymond Edde. Edde, who believes Moslems, Jews and Christians can cohabit the same society in something approaching a spirit of fraternity, was wounded last May when his car was ambushed by his fellow Christians, or so it is thought. It was reported that more than 100 bullet holes were found in his car, but Edde was able to get to a hospital where he has been issuing rhetorical questions aimed at the American Secretary of State:

"Is it true that you agreed to let Syria seize Lebanon to wipe out the country's sovereignty and destroy the Palestinian resistance? I don't expect an answer to my questions but rather a bullet for having asked them... Lebanon, Mr. Kissinger, thanks to you, is in the process of disappearing."

The Patriarch of Antioch has charged that mercenaries have been brought into the country. There are stories, not merely of the routine bombing of schools and hospitals characteristic of warfare in the 20th century, but of special acts of savagery that one prays aren't true but are only the exaggerated atrocity tales to one side's propaganda.

What part has Dr. Kissinger played in this? Fifty thousand dead Lebanese may be a reasonable cost for peace with honor in the opinion of this sly and sanguinary man. But maybe there is no moukhatat. The difficulty is there are so many dead bodies lying around and so much circumstantial evidence pointing to the curly-haired amoralist of Foggy Bottom, that he must lay out what he has done.

None of his empty, evasive locutions that are high on vacuous abstractions and low on facts, and if that man lies, if that man has had a hand in killing this new batch of people, damn him and shame on us.

How The Bomb Was Born

The black-uniformed fascists were marching in Rome. The bellicose dictator, Benito Mussolini, stood on a rug-draped balcony of the Palazzo Venezia waving his fist at the world. Enrico Fermi, a physicist, tried one more experiment with Emilio Segre.

They bombarded uranium with slow neutrons. Whatever they were trying to discover, the test failed. As is customary with scientists, they published the result in an international scientific journal so that other physicists would not repeat the tests.

It was snowing in Berlin in the late Spring of 1938. At the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, Lise Meitner flipped through old magazines. She studied the computations of the Fermi-Segre test again and again. Her scientific mind kept telling her that the test may have failed, but that the Italians had proved that uranium fission was possible.

If this were so, an atomic bomb could be manufactured. Theoretically, it would have many times the explosive power of all the bombs in the world. And yet — it could not be. Surely Fermi would have noticed it and the Italians would be making such an explosive.

Otto Hahn cut in on her reverie. He held out keys. "Take my car," he said tersely, "and go to lunch. Do not come back, Lise." She seemed surprised, amused.

"Why?" Hahn was her boss. "Because," he said, "you are a Jew and your name just went up on Himmeler's list." "This is a joke? I'm a physicist." "Go, I tell you. Drive north out of Germany. Fast."

Miss Meitner left. She kept the magazine. It was two evenings later when she arrived in Copenhagen. Miss Meitner took her news to Niels Bohr. Dr. Bohr looked like a well-dressed walrus.

He had no time for Meitner. "I must get the evening train to the ship. I go to America to teach at Princeton University. I have no time, young lady."

She begged. She told him about Enrico Fermi's experimental failure. He was not interested. She pushed her way into the house and used chalk on a blackboard. The computation was a series of hieroglyphics.

"Look at it," she said. "Then think of barium in the uranium." He looked, scowling. His pudgy index finger punched each of the figures. Niels Bohr was stunned.

"The Italians can make it," she said. He nodded. "I will see Dr. Einstein. He knows the Americans." Lise Meitner hurried to Sweden to live out the war.

Summer came early to Princeton, N.J. Niels Bohr remembered the Fermi test. He was told that Dr. Einstein was enjoying a holiday at Peconic Bay, Long Island. Bohr gave the test to a brilliant scientist, Dr. Edward Teller. "Take this to Einstein," he said. "It's important."

Einstein was on the porch of a cottage. He looked like an intellectual poodle playing a violin. Teller told him the story. The scientist examined the paper. "Yes, yes," he said, "but I do not know Roosevelt, and Roosevelt does not know me."

The two men meditated. Einstein smiled. "I know a broker in Wall Street at Goldman Sachs. He is a personal friend of the President. He will deliver this with a note from me."

It was a warm sunny day when the broker stood at the White House gate. He did not know FDR. He was embarrassed. Yet, he told the guard, he had to see the President.

What about? Well, he said a personal letter from Dr. Albert Einstein. "He guard phoned Grace Tully. There was a two-minute wait. 'Send him in. The President will see him.'"

The broker stood before the big desk. Roosevelt leaned back, grinning through his Bakelite cigarette holder. He read the note. "An atom bomb?" he said. "Does Dr. Einstein think it can be done?" The broker nodded.

When he left, the President pressed a buzzer. General Watson came in. "This," he said, "is a mathematical formula sent by a German woman scientist. Einstein thinks it can be used to fashion the most powerful explosive in the world."

"Pa, I want you to take $6,000 out of my budget and give it to the Navy Department. Tell them to ask their bright young men to see if there's anything to this. ..."

Bureaucrats Railroad Taxpayers

WASHINGTON — The government overseers, who administer the billions that Congress appropriated to rehabilitate bankrupt railroads, are squandering the taxpayers' money on themselves.

They voted themselves so many fringe benefits that one overseer, Treasury Undersecretary Jerry Thomas, raised a howl in the backrooms of the United States Railway Association. He shamed his colleagues into revoking permission to bill the government for their country club memberships. But they refused to repay the membership fees that the taxpayers had already shelled out.

The outraged Thomas, meanwhile, conducted a Treasury Department audit of the extravagances of the USRA administrators. Last week he confronted them behind closed doors with seven resolutions which would cut back their elaborate fringe benefits. All seven were defeated; four were never even seconded.

Then the offended board members passed a resolution, incredibly, chastising Thomas for trying to save the taxpayers' money. The resolution, adopted by a 7-to-2 vote, sharply rejected "the Undersecretary of Treasury's allegation of 'carte blanche use of the taxpayers' money' or a 'cavalier attitude with the public's tax dollars.'"

The board also took action to prevent Thomas from ever auditing their extravagances again. They voted that "no member of the board of directors is to undertake an independent audit of the Association without the approval of the board."

Congress established the United States Railway Association in 1973 to revitalize the ailing railroads in the 17 northeastern states. This is being accomplished with financial transfusions from the Treasury. But an excessive amount of money has been spent to maintain the lavish lifestyle of the administrators.

One of Chairman Arthur Lewis' first moves, for example, was to decree that the USRA's top brass should belong to "a private dining club in the Washington area." He also ruled, according to a May 21, 1974, confidential memo, that the USRA would pick up the membership fees and dues.

Lewis then set the example by enrolling in the exclusive Burning Tree Country Club. This set back the taxpayers $5,000 for initiation fees and $1,000 a year for dues. Seven other USRA officers happily joined the clubs of their choice to the tune of $13,550.

When Thomas joined the board in April, he was appalled at this misuse of taxpayers' money. He persuaded the board to rescind the club memberships. But when he followed up last week with a resolution requiring Lewis to pay back $5,000 for his Burning Tree membership, Thomas couldn't get anyone on the board to second the motion.

He also tried to cut back other extravagances that the Treasury Department audit had uncovered. The audit, written in the dull, factual language of the Treasury accountants, was circulated only to USRA bigwigs. But here are the highlights:

Representation Expenses — During the first nine months of the 1976 fiscal year, USRA's top executives collected more than $35,000 for wine, dining and entertaining VIPs. After citing six pages of abuses, the auditors recommended reconsidering "whether funds could continue to be spent for official reception and representation purposes."

One of the biggest spenders again was Chairman Lewis, who didn't even bother to explain 69 of the 79 charges he submitted. He spent $726.71, for example, on dinners for 12 on two consecutive nights at Washington's prestigious Metropolitan Club. No explanations were given for the dinners.

But he threw another $778.55 party at the same club, according to his voucher, to "honor a number of USRA employees who had worked a considerable amount of overtime."

Relocation Allowances — Lewis also authorized extravagant living expenses for USRA personnel who wanted to work in Washington without giving up their homes elsewhere. These allowances were higher than it would have cost them to resettle in Washington.

As usual, Lewis was one of the first to take advantage of his own policy. He collected $26,000 to cover the high cost of living in Washington. This was added to the $63,000 salary he is already drawing — the maximum, incidentally, allowed by Congress.

The living allowances are so lavish that 13 other USRA officers have also chosen to live in Washington at the taxpayers' expense and maintain separate homes elsewhere. This practice "would not have been allowed," the auditors notes, if other federal establishments. But Congress exempted USRA from the usual federal restrictions.

Consulting Contracts — Under this remarkable policy, USRA officers can quit and still stay on the payroll as consultants. They are paid a lump sum for the contract period, usually three months, no matter how much time the actually put in.

One vice president, for example, collected $13,650 for only six days of work. That comes out to $2,275 per day.

The report also condemns other, lesser extravagances. The taxpayers are stuck for example, with the traffic fines the USRA bigwigs incur in the line of duty. These have included fines for speeding "Several of the traffic violations," the audit report adds, "were incurred by drivers while picking up newspapers for the chairman and former president."

Yet the board voted to continue these extravagances and to reprimand the man who tried to blow the whistle.

THE CLEARWATER

HIGHLAND—One of the most exciting and prestigious summer music folk festivals in the East will be presented on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15, at the Hudson Valley Winery in Highland. The festival will be a benefit for the Clearwater Sloop Restoration, the non-profit organization working for the preservation of the beauty and ecological health of the Hudson River.

The festival will run from 3 p.m. until 9 p.m. and will be staged in a natural amphitheater that slopes from the wine village down to the edge of the river.

Pete Seeger, prime mover in the Clearwater campaign, will head the list of musical stars which will include three other members of his family. It will be the first time in 12 years that the Seeger family will appear together. The others family members include Nicky, recently returned from a tour of Holland, and Mike and Alice Seeger, long-time favorites on the college campus.

Sonia Malkine, the French folk singer from Brittany and the star of dozens of folk music festivals throughout this country and Europe, will sing medieval ballads and modern songs, accompanying herself on the guitar and the vielle, a 15th century version of the hurdy-gurdy.

Another of the exciting stars to perform at the winery festival is Dan Smith, blind harmonica player and singer whose compositions reflect the pathos of slavery and the deprivation of blacks in Alabama. Smith play the harmonica and sang on the street corners of his native state, often chased away by police, until he came north to work. Blinded in an industrial accident in 1960, he turned to music again and immediately became a hit at festivals.

Playing with Pete Seeger, he appeared at the Newport and Philadelphia folk music festivals and has performed recently at many concerts. His spirituals and back-country songs draw heavily upon his boyhood background and he achieves unusual effects with his harmonica when using it for background sounds like trains and the noises of a fox chase.

Luci and Vego, favorites of the cafe and folk festival set in the nation's capital, will also appear.

Pete Seeger agreed to head the program only because it would benefit the restoration work he has worked for during the past decade. The sloop Clearwater is a near-perfect reproduction of the sloops used by the Dutch on the Hudson and adopted by the English settlers after the colony was taken over by Britain.

The Clearwater symbolizes the days when such sloops provided the only transportation on the river — a time when the river was still in its original pristine state.

Supported by an organization whose members number more than 4,000, the Clearwater Sloop group has devoted itself to ending pollution on the Hudson and on other rivers and wetlands in America. It has forced many industries to stop discharging harmful wastes into the river and was the first group to disclose the dangers of PCB pollution. The sloop will be anchored in the river during the concert as a scenic backdrop.

Guests at the affair will be able to enjoy some of the New York State wines produced at the winery as well as cheeses and tidbits. A snack bar will be open or guests can bring their own lunches. Wine will be available on the premises and a picnic luncheon will be served.

The program will be presented on Aug. 15, rain or shine. Tickets for the festival are $10 for adults and $7 for those under 18. Tickets must be purchased in advance and can be obtained at the winery in Highland or at the Sloop offices on Market Street in Poughkeepsie. They may also be ordered by mail from the Folk Festival, Hudson Valley Wine Company, Highland, N.Y. 12528 with checks made payable to the winery. Tickets are limited and those interested should purchase or order them early.

MURRAY LOUIS DANCE COMPANY will perform at The Woodstock Playhouse, Monday, 8:30 p.m.

Host of Happenings At Woodstock Playhouse

WOODSTOCK—The Murray Louis Dance Company, one of the most widely toured companies in the world, appears for one performance at the Woodstock Playhouse Monday evening, Aug. 9, 8:30 p.m. Murray Louis, himself, will dance with the company, which has appeared in such widely situated cities as Halifax, Canada; the Uris Theatre in New York City; Boca Raton, La.; and throughout South America.

This weekend, David Robison's "Promenade All!" is showing at the Playhouse; performances are tonight and Saturday, 8:30, Sunday at 7 p.m. and a matinee Saturday at 2:30 o'clock.

Children's Theatre continues Saturday, 11 a.m. with the Wayne Pitts Puppets in two productions: "Beauty and the Beast," and "Three Wishes." In addition to these classic fairy tales, Mephisto the Magician will do his magic. All seats are $1.75, no reservations necessary, for Children's Theatre.

The dance company which will be appearing Monday night is known for its multimedia work using recordings, movie footage, period costumes and slide projections. Louis is an all-together different kind of dancer reflecting a viewpoint other than the Denishaw-derived traditions of Martha Graham and the Humphrey Weidman School.

A prolific choreographer at 50, Louis has been commissioned for new works by the Vienna State Opera Ballet, the Royal Danish Ballet, the Scottish Ballet and the Berlin State Opera Ballet and Rudolf Nureyev.

Louis came to dance late, at 21. Shortly thereafter he began to train with Alwin Nikols and has continued to perform with the Nikols Company. From the beginning, Louis sought to develop a body that could be "totally oriented, directly applied and sentiently alive." He was born on the Lower East Side of New York City and he returned there with Alwin Nikols to the school he recently founded at the Henry Street Playhouse.

CHILDREN'S SERIES at Woodstock Playhouse features The Wayne Pitts Puppets, Saturday, Aug. 7, 11 a.m.

vantage of all these events. Rain date for the Arts and Crafts Show and Sell will be Saturday, Aug. 14.

The plate will be issued in a strictly limited signed, dated and numbered edition of 200. A record of purchasers will be on file with the Huguenot Historical Society, which will also receive plate No. 1. The solid pewter plate will sell for $45, the money going toward restoration of Mountain Metals Studio, a non-profit crafts school, 3 Dunn St., Kingston, where the plate is being produced. DEAR ABBY

What to Tell People? Tell Them the Truth

DEAR ABBY: Last year our daughter was married in a beautiful church wedding, after which she moved to another state. She is back home now (alone) for what friends and relatives assume is a "visit." Actually, Doris (not her real name) has left her husband, but nobody knows it yet.

We have asked her not to announce it because we still have hopes that she and her husband will patch up their differences. But Doris insists that there's no chance for a reconciliation.

Abby, what should we tell people when she stays and stays? Doris says she wants to see a lawyer here who's a friend of her father's, but we're urging her to wait a while. Once she sees a lawyer about a divorce, the cat will be out of the bag and the whole town will start talking. She says she doesn't care, but we do.

Doris is 23 and her husband is 25. She refuses to say why she left him. How should we handle this?—DORIS' MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: What's to handle? Your daughter is an adult, and since she has asked for no advice or counsel from you, the best thing you can give her is your wholehearted support. Your biggest concern seems to be "what to tell people." Tell them the truth!

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the woman whose husband reads all the time. It annoyed her, but I can understand how he feels because that's the way I am. You might call us "bookaholics."

I always have something to read with me. I read if I'm eating alone or taking a bath. I read while I'm walking down the street or waiting for a red light. I read while waiting for an elevator, or standing in line at a checkout counter. It makes the time go faster and calms my nerves.

If I don't have something to read, and I have a few minutes to spare, I become very upset and even physically sick.—SEATTLE BOOKAHOLIC

DEAR BOOKAHOLIC: I'm all for reading, but reading while walking down the street or waiting for a red light can be hazardous to one's health.

DEAR ABBY: Just to put an end to the controversy about why a man would wear only one earring: MY reason is simple—I lost the other one.—ONE OF A KIND

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

John T. Sloper Reviews

'Promenade All' Termed a Winner in Every Aspect

Those who appreciate really fine acting need look no further than the Woodstock Playhouse, where David V. Robinson's "Promenade All" will be on view until August 15. The show is a winner from every aspect.

There are ten characters — each a very distinct individual — to be seen in this study of four generations of a family spanning nearly 80 years, but they're played by only four actors!

But it is not the versatility of the players — and they are certainly very proficient technically — that matters here. What counts is the story (or stories), that contains some of the most simple, yet profound, witty and wise writing since James Thurber or Thornton Wilder.

The changing (yet strikingly similar) values — moral, political, spiritual and economic — from generation to generation are revealed in universal terms through a series of exchanges between the characters. Often, most is said by what is unsaid. The communication gap that has always existed (and probably always will) between not only generations, but between loved ones and strangers alike, says clearly what the "theatre of the absurd" beats around the bush with — and says it with wit and style, that continuously compels attention.

Top off this underlying seriousness of purpose with the quietly humorous philosophical approach to it all, and the playing of it with high style but by an ensemble that clearly enjoys what it is doing and does it to perfection, and you have live theatre at its quietly exciting best!

The four actors creating all this magic are Josh Clark, Lenka Peterson, Richard Holland and John Newton. If Clark and Newton tend to stand out in memory it is only because the characters they play are more flamboyant. Clark, because he represents each new generation from scene to scene, and Newton because we all have a warm spot in our hearts for old codgers who still have a spark of life.

This is not to devalue the contributions of Holland and Peterson. The various roles they play are quieter and it is to their credit that they weave in and out, forming the background of the tapestry, without distracting us from the total work.

So far this summer the Woodstock Playhouse production has generally rated tops among all the entries, and this one is their best to date.

When we have a play that so painlessly increases our understanding of each other, given a performance that is overwhelming in its subtlety — you owe it to yourself to see it without fail.

You have until August 15 (Wednesdays through Sundays) to do so. Matinees are Wednesdays and Saturdays. No excuses, now!

UFOs Sighted In Putnam

MAHOPAC, N.Y. (UPI) — With the exploits of the Viking I Martian lander having re-awakened dormant extraterrestrial interests in many persons, several policemen in this Putnam County community say they saw a spinning UFO this week.

The Federal Aviation Administration said its radar facilities did not pick up any unknown object Wednesday, but the officers say otherwise.

Town of Carmel police officer Kenneth Stern was called by a Mahopac resident to Valley Road to see the object, "It was round in shape and was emitting three different colors from red to yellow to blue," he said. "The colors would become brighter and then dimmer."

The object was sighted at 9:27 p.m., said Stern. "I stayed in the same spot for a half hour watching it. It was definitely something I had not seen before," he said.

Another police officer, Tom Budington, got out of his patrol car on Austin Road when he saw the object. "It looked like a light in the sky with a strobe effect," he said. "I imagine it was a plane or something, but it was strange. It was something you'd look at and wonder what it was."

Police officer Dennis Freyler, who also reportedly saw the object, could not be reached for comment.

Stern said he saw about 20 residents who stayed outside their houses to watch the object.

Stern and Budington said they did not know when the object disappeared.

Woolen Mowers Cut Grass

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Householders and businesses who want their grass cut cheaply are being urged to use sheep.

"Woolen lawnmowers are the cheapest, cleanest, quietest, most nonpolluting ones you can get," a spokesman for the German Sheep Raisers Association said Thurs.

Sheep already are being rented by schools, factories, large homeowners, and a helicopter landing field to remove grass.

Annette van Dorp, 22-year-old agricultural student, started a Rent-a-Sheep company with 300 sheep in Bonn in April and has been so successful she is planning to increase her flock to 700.

FATAL ERROR—Taft Schreiber, MCA Inc. executive and Republican Party fund raiser, died as a result of a clerical error by a University of California blood bank technician, a UCLA spokesman said. Schreiber, 68, died June 14 at UCLA hospital after undergoing surgery for a urologic disorder. The operation went well but Schreiber was given two units of the wrong blood type over a 10-hour period the next day.

Storm Belt Roams The Nation

By UPI
Thundershowers stretched from north Texas to the upper Midwest and into the Central Plains early today.

A funnel cloud was sighted 15 miles northwest of Pryor, Okla., but there were no reports of damage or injuries. Golfball-sized hail hit Norton, Kansas.

Other storms stretched from the middle Mississippi Valley to the upper Ohio Valley.

Showers dampened a wide area from Pennsylvania to western New England Thursday night and other isolated storms brought rain from the Northern Rockies through the Pacific Northwest and into northern California.

A few scattered showers dotted the Gulf Coast and Florida.

Locally heavy rains in California's Sacramento Valley triggered a flash flood watch for the foothills of the Black Butte Reservoir area.

Wind gusts of up to 60 miles an hour were reported at Burns, Ore., but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

He Prefers Burgers

BONN (UPI) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, making his 31st trip to the United States next week, has strong views on American food.

Asked Wednesday if he intended to meet "the real America" by stopping at a fast-food place "for a hot dog," Schmidt said:

"I have been in America about 30 times already, and I know America quite well by stopping at a fast-food place "for a hamburger," Schmidt said.

The facts of life.

Swimming's a barrel of fun. It can also be a barrel of danger, if you don't know the fundamentals—if you don't know how to take care of yourself in the water.

That's why Red Cross swimming, lifesaving and water safety courses are offered all over the country.

We want everybody—even little kids—to know The Facts of Life in the water. Since we began to teach swimming, we've issued a grand total of 55,216,000 swimming certificates. Millions upon millions of people have learned to swim with us. Or learned to swim better.

If you've ever wondered where Red Cross money goes, consider just this one fact: nearly every lifeguard serving in America is Red Cross trained and accredited.

Isn't Red Cross a good idea? Belong.

Kissinger, Shah Confer on Jetfighter-Crude Oil Exchange

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Shah Reza Pahlavi of Iran are exploring the possibility of having U.S. defense contractors supply Iran with several hundred jetfighters in return for shipments of Iranian crude oil.

In two days of talks beginning today they also will try to resolve a dispute over tough safeguards the United States insists on attaching to the proposed sale of eight nuclear power reactors to Iran.

After meeting the Shah and Empress Farah in the summer palace at Nowshahr by the Caspian Sea, Kissinger was scheduled to visit the North Iran Fisheries Company, a major caviar-processing center.

The secretary flew here from London Thursday night after talks with British Prime Minister James Callaghan on ways to move Rhodesia from white to black rule without bloodshed.

Kissinger's talks with the Shah are expected to focus on the Persian Gulf area, the Middle East situation, the crisis in Lebanon and the long-term prospects for peace in the Near East, as well as the arms-for-oil deal the Shah has proposed to several U.S. defense contractors.

Under the proposal, Iran will supply up to 400,000 barrels a day of excess crude oil to the U.S. defense contractors, who will then dispose of it on the American market.

In return, the contractors will provide Iran with 300 F16 jetfighters and up to 255 F18s.

Officials traveling with the Kissinger party said the U.S.

government study of the project is not complete.

Furthermore, the attitude of Congress is uncertain. Concerned about the massive sales of $10 billion worth of arms to Iran since 1973, Congress is expected to want to review such a deal and possibly add its own restrictions.

The officials added Kissinger does not anticipate being able to resolve the dispute.

"Louis himself is a brilliant dancer... one of the best technicians in modern dance. He excels in rhythmic responses and muscular control, but also has an exceptional beauty of line that is more like that of a classical than a modern dancer. He has in abundance, a theatricality, a coldly dada sense of the ridiculous, and a crystal bright imagination."
Clive Barnes, The New York Times
"Murray Louis and his six partners add something important to American modern dance because they have succeeded in mastering their bodies, a mastery unknown in our climate, as well as in developing a sense of humor, a sense of logic, and a sense of the absurd such as only playwrights can."
Paris, Le Figaro, Claude Baignères
"And Murray Louis is excellent. A dancer whose body is at the command of the tiniest nuance, he plays his instrument (his body) fascinatingly and with rhythmic clarity, electrifying the audience."

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The Mutiny of the Pennsylvania Line on Jan. 1, 1781, started as an orderly march of 2,400 ragged and half-starved veterans to Philadelphia to present their grievances to Congress. The mutiny was provoked by the appearance of Army agents offering $25 in coin to new enlistees. Although two British agents were arrested while trying to recruit mutineers, there was no hint of desertion among the troops. Washington bargained with the veterans — in exchange for the British, the mutineers received backpay, discharges and furloughs. The World Almanac notes.

Senate Approves Tax Breaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted to liberalize gift and estate taxes and approved new tax breaks for college students and Olympic athletes as it moved toward final passage of a major tax revision bill.

The bulky, much-criticized bill began life as a tax "reform" measure, but after going through the wringer of the Senate Finance Committee and four weeks of Senate floor action, its reform sections actually would lose more than $11 billion in Treasury revenue by 1981.

The bill does crack down in some areas, notably a tougher minimum tax on the wealthy and a tightening of tax advantages for sick pay, business use of home and vacation homes.

It places relatively mild curbs on tax shelters and gives taxpayers new rights in dealing with the Internal Revenue Service.

It also contains new advantages likely to be popular with the public, such as expanded tax credit for child care expenses for working parents.

But "reformers" are upset with dozens of other special interest amendments they consider giveaways. Numerous groups and industries, such as railroads and airlines, would gain major benefits under the bill.

The bill still faces a conference with a much tougher House-passed bill, and many of its more controversial amendments likely will be dropped.

With tempers flaring on both sides, reformers attempted unsuccessfully twice to kill the bill and merely extend current tax cuts, one of the few provisions everyone agrees on.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, threatened once during a bitter debate with Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., to resign his chairmanship if the bill were not killed.

In a later conversation with reporters, Muskie attributed his threat to "an excess of oratorical zeal." But he warned it was possible that Congress would have to revise upward its budget deficit target because of the Senate's action.

As the Senate worked late into the night Thursday in an effort to complete action today, it passed several major tax law changes, including:

— A new college tuition tax credit, which would allow parents or students to subtract from their tax bills up to $100 of tuition and fees in 1977. The credit would increase $50 a year until it leveled off at $250 a year in 1980 and after.

— A major liberalization of gift and estate taxes, a change long sought by farmers and others who say that estate taxes are forcing sale of family farms and businesses when the owner dies. The Senate would increase the current $60,000 estate tax exemption to a tax credit equivalent to $197,000. Surviving spouses also would gain greater exemptions — $250,000 or half the estate, whichever was greater.

— Olympic athletes or their families would be allowed a tax credit of up to $500 for nonreimbursable expenses of competition. Contributions to the Olympics also would be made tax deductible.

Clark Hits at Business

NEW YORK (UPI) — Democratic senatorial hopeful Ramsey Clark wants the nation's 700 largest corporations to be federally chartered.

"Big business today is effectively a private government, wielding more power than government and more power in government than the citizenry does," the former U.S. attorney general said Thursday at a meeting with members of the Council on Economic Priorities.

"So, while the Fords and Buckleys talk only of getting big government off our backs and out of our hair, I say we must get big business out of our lungs and out of our pockets," he said at the non-profit research group's national headquarters.

The federal government, by chartering the 700 largest corporations, could regulate up to 75 per cent of the nation's businesses in terms of assets and sales, according to Clark.

He said a federal chartering act could prohibit managers from handpicking boards of directors and establishing their own salaries. He said such a move could guarantee minority stockholders representation, allow small groups of shareholders to nominate directors and increase penalties for corporate crime.

Clark said corporations could be required to make full disclosure to shareholders and the public about hiring practices, pollution, lobbying activities, advertising claims and costs and profits.

Finally, he said such an act could be used to assist in the decentralization of the nation's most monopolized industries — "most chartering theory has an antitrust component" — and to protect the constitutional rights of corporate employees.

JUGGLING ACT

Sandy Alomar of the Yankees waits for ball to come down after he bobbled grounder hit by Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas during second inning of Thursday's game. Alomar's juggling helped contribute to a 9-3 loss.

Rain Helps Frisella Get the Job Done

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Ace reliever Danny Frisella of the Milwaukee Brewers doesn't mind a few raindrops falling on his head. He knows they're falling just as hard on the batters he is facing.

Frisella came on in the fifth inning Thursday to help the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-3 victory in a rain-shortened, six-inning game. It was raining when he came on to relieve Jerry Augustine, who missed the win by leaving after just 4 1-3 innings, and Frisella said he didn't mind the inclement weather a bit.

"I knew it was raining in the hitters' eyes and they couldn't be too excited about hitting against me," Frisella said after he picked up an easy win to run his record to 3-1. "They were tip-toeing in there and it got worse for them. You've got to turn that stuff, like rain, around and work it to your advantage."

Even without the rain the Brewers seemed more than a match for the Yankees, leaders in the Eastern Division, the same division where Milwaukee resides in the cellar. The two teams split a doubleheader Wednesday and the Brewers seemed bound and determined to win the finale.

George Scott broke out of his slump with a home run and two doubles as he drove in three runs. He doubled and scored in the first inning as Milwaukee took a quick 2-0 lead and the Brewers scored two more in the third inning, another in the fourth inning and four more in the sixth.

Augustine ran into problems when he gave up all three runs in the fourth inning and was lifted for Frisella.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin was seeing red, but not about the way his pitchers were battered. He was upset that the officials didn't order the tarpaulin put on the infield earlier as the rain began to turn it muddy.

Finally at the end of the sixth inning things got so bad the tarp was put on but by that time Martin had had enough.

Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas said that Martin told the umpire, "he wouldn't bring his players out on the field. He said he didn't want them to get hurt."

So after 34 minutes the umpires called the game because of rain.

When and if the Baltimore Orioles make a belated run for the American League pennant this summer, it won't be without the help from a couple of guys they almost traded away last winter.

Doug DeCinces, who came within a handshake of being dealt to the New York Mets last December, and Wayne Garland, who figured in numerous other off-season trade talks, are two players who must continue to play key roles for any late-season flag drive by the Orioles.

Both contributed mightily in Thursday night's 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians which vaulted the Orioles into second place in the AL East, 11 games behind the New York Yankees with whom they open a last ditch three game series tonight. DeCinces drove home three runs with a homer and a triple, while Garland improved his won-lost mark to 13-2 by spacing 10 hits, striking out five and walking none.

"I had no plans for Garland as a starter this season," reiterated Orioles' manager Earl Weaver, "but then we traded Holtzman and Alexander and suddenly a spot opened up. As for DeCinces, he's been swinging a good bat the last few games since we got him to move closer to the plate."

"I'm seeing the breaking pitch better," said DeCinces, who has gotten five hits in his last eight at-bats. "Another thing is that I'm playing every day now. The first half of the season I was in and out of the lineup with Brooks Robinson and that was tough on both of us."

During the December baseball meetings, the Orioles were all set to deal DeCinces and center fielder Paul Blair to the Mets for Rusty Staub before the Detroit Tigers stepped into the bidding and offered New York veteran southpaw Mickey Lolich. Garland, meanwhile, was reportedly part of a package the Orioles were putting together in an effort to lure center fielder Rick Monday away from the Chicago Cubs.

"I've been waiting six years for this opportunity," the 25-year old right-hander said, "but the better your record gets, the more confidence you have in your ability."

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Texas shut out California 1-0, Kansas City put away Minnesota 6-4, and Boston edged Detroit 5-4 in the only games scheduled.

Rangers 1, Angels 0
Bert Blyleven yielded six hits in notching his fourth shutout of the season and fourth straight victory. The Rangers' Jeff Burroughs scored the game's lone run in second when he looped a double to center, which was misjudged by a pair of Angels, and later came home on Lenny Randle's sacrifice fly.

Royals 6, Twins 4
Slump-ridden Fred Patek blooped a two-run sixth inning single to stake Kansas City's Dennis Leonard to his 13th victory of the season. Patek has only eight hits since the All Star break and the RBI were his first since July 3.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4
Rookie Butch Hobson belted a two-run homer to break a 2-2 tie in the sixth and Jim Rice added a solo shot, his 16th, in the eighth as the Red Sox outlasted Detroit. Aurelio Rodriguez had a two-run homer for Detroit and Bill Freehan hit another with none on in the ninth. Reggie Cleveland, 6-5, was the winner in relief.

Chicago, picking first by virtue of having the worst won-lost record in the NBA last season, tabbed Gilmore, hoping the 7-foot-2 center would fill their pressing need for a dominant center.

Gilmore, a five-time ABA All-Star, was

Coaching Moves At Coleman

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON—A major shakeup at Coleman High, a new football coach at Ellenville High and openings in basketball at New Paltz High are the key changes so far in the Ulster County Athletic League's coaching ranks for the coming school year.

The biggest news may yet arrive when the voters in the Pine Bush and Red Hook school districts return to the polls on Aug. 16 and 18 respectively to decide on school budgets for the coming year. In Pine Bush, 37 teachers stand to lose their positions in one of the four propositions up for a vote.

In addition to those two, Highland Fallsburgh and Liberty high schools still have to determine any coaching changes, and Onteora has appointed two men to three positions.

The most surprising news to date has come from Coleman where Wayne Reynolds has been replaced as varsity baseball coach and Joe Keller has resigned as cross country coach. Both departures were confirmed this week by new athletic director Vince Bitonte.

"Mr. Keller has resigned for personal reasons," said Bitonte, who was appointed in June after Bill DuBois had submitted his resignation. "Ed Synan, the track coach, will replace him. I'm sorry over the loss of Keller. We did try to work something out. There are no bad feelings, absolutely not."

Keller guided the Statesmen to an unbeaten dual meet record for three seasons.

"There's been a change at Coleman," said Keller. "I felt the cross country runners were doing a lot and weren't being appreciated for it. I don't want to make waves. I think there's been a change in policy. My time there was very pleasant and I wanted to leave like that."

Bitonte, who will coach varsity basketball, has named himself to handle the varsity baseball position. "When I took this job, I requested the baseball coaching job," said Bitonte.

Reynolds could not be reached for comment. Sources say he had been planning on returning as baseball coach even though he had chosen to give up his position as JV basketball mentor. The move to replace him in baseball reportedly took the veteran diamond coach by surprise.

Meanwhile at Ellenville, a new football coaching staff was appointed in May. The new head coach is Jack Sovak, the former junior varsity coach. He replaced former varsity coach Pete Meoli who resigned for "personal reasons." Frank Muller is the new assistant varsity coach and Ed Healy takes over the jayvees.

Ron Pape has been named head coach of the Onteora junior varsity grid team and he'll also handle junior varsity baseball. Jerry Corrado moves from the head jayvee post to assistant to varsity coach John Meehan, Jr.

New Paltz High has openings both for boys and girls basketball with the respective resignations of John Wirth and Jean Brownly. "They have not yet been replaced," said athletic director John Ford.

At Pine Bush, former head track coach and offensive line coach Andy Kavleski has left for Liberty High. Junior high football coach Dwight Smith is one of the 37 teachers whose positions are in jeopardy since the budget was twice voted down. The vote on Aug. 16 includes four propositions: personnel (the 37 positions), interscholastic athletics, instructional supplies, and transportation.

"It's very difficult to say what our personnel situation will be," said athletic director John Shaughnessy. "It depends on the vote. I don't anticipate losing any head coaches, but I may lose some assistants."

There are no changes planned at Rondout Valley, Marlboro or Wallkill High Schools.

Saugerties Girls Beaten In State Junior Softball

KINGSTON—The Saugerties Little League Junior Girls softball season ended Wednesday in the third inning.

Playing the Bellrose Little League in the semifinals of the Junior Girls State Tournament at Kingston-American Little League Field, the Sawyers entered the third with a 4-1 lead. Bellrose promptly punched across five runs, however, and went on to victory and the finals, 7-5.

Bellrose will meet the other semifinal victor, Islip, which downed Manlius 10-0 Wednesday, in the final tonight at Kingston American Field.

Bellrose's heroine in the semifinal triumph was winning pitcher Karen Wroblewski. Wroblewski, besides striking out four and walking one, drove in four runs on a triple and a single.

Saugerties attempted a rally in their last at-bats, but trailing 7-4, the one run the Sawyers scored only narrowed the gap. The only Saugerties batter who finished the game with more than one hit was Lisa Fellows who knocked out two singles. No Sawyer had an extra-base hit.

Islip had a much easier route to the state finals than Bellrose. Manlius managed only one hit off winner Christina Connor while Islip sluggers crunched Manlius starter Holly Fox for nine hits. Both pitchers enlivened the base paths with five walks each.

Islip offensive standouts were Nancy Delagi who smashed a triple and a single to bring three teammates home and Brooke Sugihara who finished with two hits and two RBI to her credit.

Weatherman Cooperating For Team Golf Tourney

ACCORD — The Ulster County Team Golf Championship, which goes this weekend at the Rondout Golf Club, has got to be better than last year's edition in at least one respect...the weather. No heat wave has been forecast for the 36-hole, two-day event, and that has to be welcome news to the returnees who sweated and staggered through a scorching weekend in '75.

One of those veterans is Joe Modica. The heat almost KO'd him last year, but he hung in and eventually wound up a winner with partner Ross Van Wagenen. Modica has a new partner this year in Tom Dillenburg, and that duo is among the stronger entries in the 34-team field.

But favorite's roles don't mean much in a better-ball competition, and that puts the team title up for grabs. Shawangunk's Frank Muller and Jon Berger demonstrated that from both angles. They came out of the pack to capture the '74 tourney, but they failed to defend to the Modica-Van Wagenen bid last season.

Muller and Berger are again in the chase as is another former winner, Leon Randall. Randall won with Harvey Bostic. Now he's teamed with Wiltwyck clubmate Bob Brown.

Another "strong" entry is Dave Blakely and Vlad Hoyt. They may not win the championship, but their combined yardage off the tees will no doubt surpass any other twosome's.

Play begins Saturday at 8 a.m. The first day leaders will go off in the final foursome Sunday.

were selected. The remaining eight have become free agents.

Gilmore was rumored to have a heart condition but NBA officials assured all clubs that there was no substance to such allegations.

"The NBA conducted a probe of Artis Gilmore's heart condition and the investigation found no substance to the report he was ailing," said Simon Gourdine, the NBA deputy commissioner. "We had medical reports on 14 of the players as of September, 1975, and all checked out. But the owners made their selections today at their own risk."

Mets Handcuff Bucs Despite Will

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Even a milestone home run by Pittsburgh Pirate slugger Willie Stargell wasn't enough to beat the New York Mets Thursday.

Jon Matlack and Skip Lockwood handcuffed all the Pittsburgh hitters except Stargell in defeating the Pirates 7-4. And Matlack knew the minute he threw the pitch to Stargell that it was a hanging curve.

"Ask him, he saw it better than I did," Matlack joked when asked what pitch the Pirate first basemen rapped for his 10th career grand slam in the sixth inning.

The shot over the centerfield fence at 400 feet was Stargell's 14th of the season, and his 382nd career blast, tying him for 18th with Frank Howard on the all-time home run list.

Matlack, now 11-6, didn't surrender Pittsburgh's second hit until the sixth inning, when he allowed infield singles to Mario Mendoza and Rennie Stennett and a walk to Dave Parker.

"I obviously walked Parker to pitch to the man (Stargell)," said Matlack. "The other guy (Parker) I haven't figured out yet."

The base on balls proved fatal, for with two outs Stargell connected and brought the Pirates to within two runs, 6-4.

"It was a hanging curve ball," shrugged Matlack. "You put our pitching staff with their hitters and the Phillies don't have a chance."

A solo homer by Roy Staiger capped the Mets scoring in the seventh.

Lockwood, who entered in the eighth with none out, fanned four of the six men he faced to pick up his 11th save.

Pirate starter Jerry Reuss (10-6) was sent to an early shower. He was tagged for five runs and nine hits in 3 2-3 innings. Two of the hits were by Matlack.

Stargell couldn't express the significance of his milestone: "I never have a moment to sit back and dwell on it," he said. "What happened today won't effect me tomorrow. You try to gear yourself for 162 games."

The loss, coupled with Philadelphia's 5-2 win over St. Louis, dropped Pittsburgh 14 games behind the Phils—the widest margin in the National League East this season.

Danny Ozark, whose relations with Philadelphia fans and reporters have been less than sensational, may have pulled off the managerial coup of the season for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Ozark knew during spring training that he had a complex problem with his pitching staff. With Wayne Twitchell, Ron Reed, Tug McGraw and Jim Lonborg listed as questionmarks, Ozark didn't know whether he would be able to stabilize his staff or struggle with chaos all season.

As it has worked out, the Phillies' staff is getting stronger as the season wears along with Twitchell now joining Reed as a fireballing, effective reliever.

Twitchell, bothered by injuries the last two seasons, pitched seven shutout innings as a starter on Aug. 1 and came back Thursday night with four shutout innings in relief as the Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 in a game ended by rain after eight innings. He has allowed six hits, struck out 13 batters in his last 11 innings and has lowered his earned run average to 1.41.

"We have some pretty good pitchers on this staff," said Twitchell, who looked like a potential 20-game winner when he posted a 13-9 record for the Phillies in 1973. "We've been in first place most of the season and we have the momentum to keep right on going."

"We've used our pitchers sparingly," commented Ozark. "We give 'em four days between starts. We haven't abused them so they should be sharp."

Twitchell received credit for his second victory when the Phillies overcame a 2-0 deficit with four runs in the fifth inning and added another in the sixth. Gary Maddox' two-run single was the big blow of the four-run inning which helped deal Lynn McGlothen his 11th loss compared with nine victories. Ollie Brown homered for the runaway Eastern Division leaders and Jose Cruz hit a two-run homer for the Cardinals.

The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, the San Francisco Giants shaded the Atlanta Braves 2-1, the San Diego Padres topped the Houston Astros 4-3, and the Chicago Cubs downed the Montreal Expos 4-3, in the other NL games.

Reds 3, Dodgers 2

Fred Norman pitched a seven-hitter for his fifth straight win and raised his record to 11-2 for the Reds. Tony Perez hit a solo homer in the sixth inning which stood up as the winning run after the Dodgers scored both their runs in the bottom of the inning. Don Sutton suffered his ninth loss against 12 wins for the Dodgers.

Giants 2, Braves 1

Gary Thomasson hit a first-inning lead-off homer and also scored the Giants' second run in the third inning to help Jim Barr win his 10th game. Phil Niekro was tagged for both San Francisco runs and lost his eighth decision against 11 victories.

Padres 4, Astros 3

Doug Rader drove in two runs, one with his sixth homer, and Dave Freisleben snapped his personal eight-game winning streak as the Padres hung on to shade the Astros. Freisleben lasted 8 1-3 innings with Butch Metzger coming on in relief in the ninth to get the final two outs although clipped for two runs. Enos Cabell hit a two-run single for the Astros in the ninth.

Cubs 4, Expos 3

Homers by George Mitterwald and Rick Monday and two unearned runs enabled the Cubs to score their win over the Expos. Ray Burris went seven innings for his eighth win while Don Stanhouse was the loser. Del Unser hit his eighth homer of the year for the Expos.

Bulls Make Major Step Toward Return to Respectability

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls took a major step toward returning to respectability Thursday when they named Artis Gilmore, one of the game's best defensive centers, as their top selection in the National Basketball Association dispersal draft.

For the privilege of signing Gilmore, whom Red Auerbach once called "the best defensive player since Bill Russell," the Bulls must pay $1.1 million to the NBA.

The Portland Trail Blazers underwent a drastic facelift, sending high-scoring backcourt man Geoff Petrie and forward Steve Hawes to Atlanta in exchange for the Hawks' No. 2 pick in the draft.

Picking second behind the Bulls, Portland selected forward Maurice Lucas and agreed to pay $300,000 for his services. With the seventh pick of the draft, the Trail Blazers obtained Moses Malone for a $350,000 price tag. Lucas and Malone are expected to combine with Bill Walton to give the Trail Blazers one of the strongest's front courts in the NBA.

Chicago, picking first by virtue of having the worst won-lost record in the NBA last season, tabbed Gilmore, hoping the 7-foot-2 center would fill their pressing need for a dominant center.

Gilmore, a five-time ABA All-Star, was both the ABA's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in 1972. In addition, Chicago's No. 1 pick in the college draft, Scott May, was a stalwart on the U.S. team which won a gold medal recently in the Montreal Olympics.

The dispersal draft was designed to distribute the 20 players on the rosters of the now defunct Kentucky Colonels and Spirits of St. Louis franchises, both clubs of which were not included in the recent ABA-NBA merger. Four clubs from the ABA will play in the NBA next season—the New York Nets, the Indiana Pacers, the Denver Nuggets and the San Antonio Spurs.

Of the 20 players in the draft, only 12

Other high priced players were Marvin Barnes, for whom Detroit paid $500,000; Ron Boone, taken by Kansas City for $250,000; and William "Bird" Averitt, whose $125,000 price tag was picked up by Buffalo after the Braves acquired his rights in a trade with Milwaukee.

A pair of $50,000 first round players were in the hopper as the New York Knicks grabbed Randy Denton and Indiana selected Wilbert Jones. The Nets paid $60,000 for Jan Van Breda Kolff, son of New Orleans coach Butch Van Breda Kolff.

Also taken in the opening round were Louie Dampier, by San Antonio for $20,000, and Ron Thomas, by Houston for $15,000. New Orleans passed after it secured Gail Goodrich from the Los Angeles Lakers. Phoenix, Seattle, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, Denver and Golden State all passed.

On the second round, all but Kansas City passed and the Kings took Mike Barr for $15,000. There was a third round, but no takers.

Players on the list who were not picked include Steve Green, Freddie Lewis, Mike D'Antoni, Barry Parkhill, Johnny Neumann, Allen Murphy, Jim Dan Conner and Jim Baker.

Group Wants to Outlaw Predawn Duck Hunting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A conservationist group wants to outlaw predawn duck hunting because endangered species cannot be identified easily in the faint light.

The Defenders of Wildlife filed suit against the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, charging there is a conflict between one set of federal regulations allowing hunters to start shooting half an hour before sunrise and other rules banning hunters from shooting some kinds of ducks.

"The regulation should be designed to protect waterfowl and to provide even better protection for those species showing population declines," said Dr. John Grandy, executive vice president of Defenders of Wildlife.

"Instead, the Fish and Wildlife Service is promoting waterfowl hunting one half hour before sunrise, when many species are active but well before the light is sufficient for identification by most waterfowl hunters."

Regulations allow hunters to shoot at ducks from half an hour before sunrise until sunset. They also specify some species of ducks that may not be hunted and set bag limits on other species to control the number killed.

"At least nine species of ducks are showing continued population declines this year, and the bag limits have been set to reduce the annual take of many of them. Yet the hunter is allowed, and even encouraged, to shoot in the dark. The whole situation is absurd," the conservationists said.

Committee Interrupts, But Doesn't Stop Cosell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional committee succeeded in interrupting Howard Cosell but the loquacious television sports broadcaster managed to get quite a few words in nevertheless.

As a witness on a panel of sports writers and commentators testifying Thursday before the special House Committee on Professional Sports, Cosell had barely uttered more than 100 words when a quorum call on the House floor compelled the panel to recess.

On the return of the committee members, the Cosell flow of words resumed full force.

He found himself in agreement with Bob Roesler of the New Orleans Times-Picayune and columnist Red Smith and Leonard Koppett of the New York Times that baseball should be stripped of the antitrust law immunity it has enjoyed under Supreme Court rulings.

A fifth member of the panel, Dick Dozer of the Chicago Tribune, disagreed, saying: "I think baseball should be immune to outside interference as long as it operates in the best interest of the public."

However, Cosell contended that baseball with its franchise shifts, is "operating in defiance of the public interest with an endless chain of carpetbagger moves."

He told the House group that if baseball is allowed to retain the legal immunity, team shifts should be subject to approval by a special federal agency.

Roesler opposed a commission for pro sports, saying it would amount to establishing a "U.S. Department of Fun and Games," although he added, "I sometimes feel baseball potentes are Model T thinkers in the jet age."

Smith and Roesler disagreed with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's veto of Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million sale of the three Oakland stars. "I think he looks foolish," Roesler said.

Asked if Finley was a good influence on baseball, Koppett said he thought the Oakland owner had done some good things and some bad things for the sport and Roesler described him as "an exciting maverick. I think he gave baseball an enema."

Koppett, Smith and Dozer opposed any federal legislation legalizing sports gambling. Koppett said under such a move "the sports pages would become simply tout sheets."

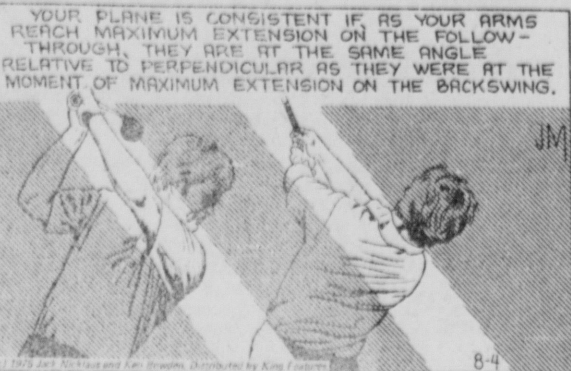

On another group of panelists, Jack Craig, sports columnist for the Boston Globe, and Peter Carry of Sports Illustrated both urged congressional caution in allowing cable television to pick up sports events by long-distance signals.

Aussies Named

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Australians Lesley Hunt and Cynthia Doerner were named Thursday as the top-seeded women players in the $157,000 U.S. Clay Courts Championships starting Monday at the Indianapolis Racquet Club.

Chris Evert, winner of the last four women's titles, bypassed the competition because she has been busy playing in World Team Tennis competition. Nancy Richey Gunther, a six-time winner, also is under contract to the WTT and will not participate.

Third-seeded woman was Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany while Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif. was fourth, the top-rated American seed.

Leonard Is Named In Paternity Suit

UPPER MERIDEN, Md. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard, who won an Olympic light welterweight boxing gold medal, has been named in a paternity suit filed on behalf of his girlfriend, whose picture he kept taped to his shoe while he fought.

Elias Silverstein, chief of the civil division of the Prince George's County State's Attorney's Office, said Thursday that 19-year-old Juanita Wilkinson named Leonard as the father of a 2-year-old child named "Little Ray." Leonard, 20, admits he fathered the child.

"The suit was filed to establish parentage and get support payments for the child," Silverstein said. "If somebody doesn't pay his support, the child becomes a ward of the state."

Wilkinson had to tell officials the child's father when she applied for welfare, of which she draws $156 a month while living with her father.

"This is strictly a civil matter, not a criminal case," said Silverstein. "On the same day we filed this, we must have filed about 20 other suits just like it. It was done before he left for the Olympics."

Under Maryland law, the county state's attorney's office is responsible for filing such suits on behalf of indigent, unmarried mothers.

Leonard, in an interview with The Washington Star, said: "All I can say is I'm sorry. I wish it hadn't happened at this particular time. I wish it had happened earlier."

He pledged to support "Little Ray," even if he has to scrap plans to attend the University of Maryland in the fall.

"I wouldn't do anything in the world to hurt him," said Leonard, who lives in Palmer Park, Md.

Even though Wilkinson went to Montreal to watch Leonard win his gold medal, she said she did not tell him about the suit and never asked him to provide support for the child.

"I didn't feel like being bothered by all those complications by asking him for any money for support," she said.

Allin Isn't Impressed

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (UPI) — Buddy Allin has played professional golf long enough to keep things in the proper perspective.

That's why the 31-year-old was not overly impressed Thursday when his 8-under-par 63 equalled the course record and gave him the first-round lead in the $200,000 B.C. Open.

"When I'm going good, I'm able to control my thinking," said the 136-pound former Marine. "If I allow myself to start thinking ahead, I always get into trouble. In Canada one time not too long ago, I shot a 67, then a 76. But another time I opened with 66, 65. The first round doesn't matter if you don't back it up."

Play resumes today with 147 players competing to remain in the field which will be cut to the low 70 for the weekend rounds. The 72-hole event will award $40,000 to the winner after Sunday's 18-hole finale.

Clout Wins at Spa

SARATOGA SPRINGS (UPI) — Cambridge Stable's Clout, with Jorge Velasquez aboard, rode to a three-quarter length victory in the $25,000 feature handicap race Thursday at Saratoga.

Teddy's Courage was second and Co Host was third in the 1 1/16 mile event for 3-year-olds and up.

Clout, a 4-year-old colt trained by William Hicks, fought off Teddy's Courage, who stayed persistently close to the winner throughout the race. Clout, earning $15,000 for the race, rewarded bettors with a payoff of $5.20, $3.20 and $2.40.

Harbor View Farm's Teddy's Courage, ridden by Angel Cordero, placed at $3.40 and $2.60. H.M. Schiff's Co Host, with Eddie Maple up, was third at $2.60.

Clout was originally coupled with Burundi but the chestnut colt was scratched prior to the race.

President Honors Jesse Owens With 'Medal of Freedom'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald Ford was talking about another time when people in the country felt, as some do now, the United States shouldn't compete in the Olympic Games anymore because they were being contaminated by politics.

The President was standing in the East Garden of the White House, his garden, talking to his kind of people, the U.S. Olympic athletes.

He wasn't talking down to them at all. What he was doing was talking to them in an honest, straightforward manner, the way a former athlete, who cared, might speak to a group of present ones interested in hearing what he had to say.

Gerald Ford congratulated the more than 200 Olympians for the job they did in Montreal, welcomed them back home and said he hoped they'd had a chance to rest a bit the past few days.

Then he got right into it. "In 1936, when Adolf Hitler was trying to turn the Games into a spectacle that would glorify racist dogma of the Nazi state, there was a strong movement in the United States against our participation in the Games," the President said. "As it turned out," he went on, "U.S. participation in those Olympics provided a sharp rebuke of Hitler's racist rubbish. Five black American athletes won eight gold medals in track and field. One American athlete in particular proved that excellence knows no racial or political limits. That man is Jesse Owens."

Jesse Owens was among those listening in the audience.

"In the 1936 Olympics, Jesse Owens won four gold medals—in the 100 meters, the 200 meters, 400 meter relay and the broad jump," the President continued. "He personally achieved what no other statesman, journalist or General achieved at that time—he forced Adolf Hitler to leave the stadium rather than acknowledge the superb victories of a black American."

From time to time, Jesse Owens confided there never was any substantial evidence Hitler got up and left his field box simply because he did not wish to see a black man have an Olympic gold medal draped around his neck, but Owens wasn't going to argue any point of history like that with the President. Certainly not now.

Gerald Ford asked Jesse Owens to step forward.

Owens did, and the President said it was his privilege to present him with the Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor the country can bestow.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

Jesse Owens was a little shook up.

"Jeez, I didn't know what in hell to say," he confided later.

He recovered magnificently, however, removing the sun glasses he was wearing and making a fine acceptance speech.

Owens said his four gold medals have gathered some dust back home by now, but he still prizes them and he brought the one he cherishes most with him, whereupon he introduced his wife.

Later, the President invited the athletes and members of their family into the White House where he personally shook hands with all of them.

When Leroy Walker, coach of the U.S. men's track and field team, passed through the receiving line, the President, who knows him, said to him, "Great effort! I'm real pleased with the performance of the whole team."

For Jimmy Jackson, the super heavyweight wrestler from Grand Rapids, Mich., Ford's hometown, it wasn't the first meeting either.

"I met him when he was a congressman," Jackson said. "He was a pretty nice guy. I guess he was the best congressman we ever had. If you had a problem, you could write him and he'd always answer you back personally. I had several friends who wrote him and he always answered and tried to help them."

The President kept up with the Olympics through the newspapers and tv. He recognized many of the athletes as they came up to shake hands with him, one of them being 6-foot-10 Tom LaGarde of the basketball team. LaGarde is from Detroit and when Ford was still a congressman, he wrote the youngster trying to get him to go to his old school, Michigan. LaGarde wound up going to North Carolina instead.

"We tried to get you to go to the University of Michigan," the President remembered when he was introduced to LaGarde.

"I almost went," said LaGarde. "It was pretty close."

The President's wife also was on the receiving line and when someone asked her which aspect of the Olympics captured most of her attention, she said, "naturally, I was interested in the girls' events, track and field and swimming, especially. I also was very proud that the girls' kayak team won a silver medal."

Fibak Dumps Rosewall

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — The young man was polite during his pregame introduction to legendary Ken Rosewall, but he got downright rude in dispatching the old master to advance into today's quarter-finals of the $100,000 Volvo International tennis tournament.

Wojtek Fibak, 24, of Poland has faced "almost all of the top 100 players but I never met Ken Rosewall until today," he explained Thursday. "I saw him play once in 1970 at Wimbledon when I was a junior."

Rosewall congratulated the young player on winning the WCT doubles championship with West Germany's Karl Meiller, and Fibak lauded Rosewall "for 20 years of great play."

Then the match started. Winning a non-stop battle of backhands, Fibak downed the 41-year-old Australian, 6-4, 6-3. The victory put him into the quarter-finals against Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, a 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 victor over Australia's Mark Edmondson.

In other matches today, childhood rivals Eddie Dibbs and Jimmy Connors square off. Manuel Orantes faces Cliff Richey, and Wimbledon doubles champions Raul Ramirez and Brian Gottfried fire across the net at one another.

In Thursday's third-round action, Connors swept Argentina's Ricardo Cano, 7-6, 6-0; Dibbs defeated Buster Mottram of Great Britain, 4-6, 7-5, 7-6; Orantes downed Colombia's Ivan Molina, 6-2, 6-3; Richey topped Victor Pecci of Paraguay, 6-3, 6-3; Ramirez stopped Australian Dick Crealy, 6-1, 7-6; and Gottfried stopped Meiller, 6-3, 6-4.

Rosewall, the sixth seed and runnerup to Connors in the 1975 Volvo tournament, aimed at Fibak's backhand to avoid the Pole's return to his forehand. Rosewall would place his shot and head for the net, only to be passed time and again by Fibak's strong backhand passing shot.

"I must have had 20 winners on the backhand passing shot," said Fibak. "I also had good success against his second serves and I was able to move him from side to side."

Against Franulovic, Fibak faces a clay-court specialist. Both are suited for the exceptionally slow, red-clay surface of the Mt. Cranmore Tennis Club.

The slower court also will be an aid to Dibbs, who never lost to Connors in their years as junior opponents.

"I always play well against him; he beat me last time, 6-4, in the third set of the Washington Star tournament in a match that could have gone either way and I beat him the time before that (in the Dewars Cup last fall)," said Dibbs. "I'm not afraid of him; I'm not afraid of anybody anymore."

Another thing Connors is not, is humble. His answer to the remark, was: "It's a lot tougher for me to get up to play Eddie Dibbs than it is for him to get up and play me."

The Saturday semifinals and Sunday finals will be televised nationally from the outdoor courts nestled in the Mount Washington Valley.

Vice Admiral Nominee

President Ford has nominated Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravelly Jr., the nation's highest ranking black, for promotion to Vice Admiral and assignment as Commander of the U.S. Third Fleet. Gravelly, 54, was the first black executive officer and command officer of a Navy warship.

Millionaire May Jump $80,000 Bond

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Attorneys for the estranged wife of a millionaire murder defendant say the $80,000 bond set in the case provides no assurance the oil executive will appear in court.

"Here's a man worth millions and I know for a fact the witnesses have a very uneasy feeling about him being released," said Jerry Loftin, one of the attorneys representing Priscilla Davis, 35, in her divorce suit against T. Cullen Davis, 42.

"My gosh, all he's got to do is jump on a plane and he's gone."

But Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry Thursday defended his recommendation of the bond amount, although he did acknowledge receiving a campaign contribution from the suspect.

"A lot of people don't realize that a bond isn't to keep somebody in jail," said Curry. "It's to ensure they show up at their hearing. As far as these murder bonds, they are about five times higher than usual."

"If you had set his bond at a million dollars, he would have gotten out just as easily," Curry said he received a $250 campaign contribution from Davis, who is charged with the Tuesday shooting deaths of his 12-year-old stepdaughter and estranged wife's lover at the $6 million mansion he abandoned two years ago when his marriage floundered.

"There was no preferential treatment from anybody that I'm aware of," Curry said.

He said Davis could not have been held in jail "unless he's an habitual (criminal) or it's a capital (murder) case."

Police Capt. J.W. Tindall said he assumed Davis was staying at the mansion, even though he had not been living at the 181-acre estate. Tindall also said Davis was not under surveillance.

The midnight shooting killed Andrea Wilborn, 12, Davis' stepdaughter, and Stan Farr, 30, a former Texas Christian University basketball player, who was living with Mrs. Davis in the mansion. Mrs. Davis was wounded by a bullet in the abdomen and is in hospital in fair condition.

Gus Gavrel, 21, who arrived with his date, an acquaintance of Davis' teen-age daughter, during the incident, was wounded by a bullet, which hit his spine. His attorneys have filed a $300,000 civil damage suit against Davis.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The Royal Moroccan archives in Rabat treasures a letter sent by President George Washington to H.M. Mohamed III, ninth ruler of the Moroccan Alaouite Dynasty, a direct ancestor of the present King, H.M. Hassan II (17th in the Alaouite Dynasty). The treaty mentioned in the letter was the "Treaty of Peace and Friendship" signed in 1787 for a duration of 50 years. Renegotiated in 1836, and still in force, it is considered to be the longest unbroken friendship treaty in history. The World Almanac notes.

Jean Adams

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

SWITCH?: (Q.) There's a boy named Alan, I've been dating him over a year and a half. He's been very nice to me but I'm only 16 (he's 19) and I want more freedom to do what I want. But I am afraid I will hurt him.

There's another boy, Jack. I like him very much. I really would like to go out with him. He's led me to believe that he'd go out with me. A lot of my friends have told me he would like to be my boyfriend, but not as long as I'm going out with Alan.

Should I break up with Alan and date Jack, even though it might not last? I really like Jack. —Tied Up in Pennsylvania

(A.) Whether Jack dates you or not, and whether your friendship with Jack lasts or not, you should break up with Alan. You should do this not because you have a chance to go with another boy, but because you don't care for Alan as you once did.

First talk to Alan and end your arrangement with him. Do this BEFORE you make any agreements with anyone else. It may hurt Alan but it is the kindest way there is.

Then, if Jack asks you and if you still want to, date Jack. But do not rush into an exclusive agreement with him. It would be better for you to date other boys too.

BAD DAYS: (Q.) I have two best friends, Kim and Denise. They are very close to me. But sometimes we argue, and I feel rejected.

The first time we fussed and I felt rejected, I thought they no longer wanted me as a friend, so I was planning on making some new friends. But I turned back to them and they seemed close again.

But it happened again. I talked it over with Denise. She said it's stupid to think she and Kim don't want me, because they are still my best friends and we still are close. They say they are my friends, but sometimes they don't act like it. I am confused. Can you help me? —Unhappy in New York

(A.) Relax and try not to be so upset over occasional differences. All of us have good days and bad days. Sometimes we snap at people. Be cheerful and positive as much as possible. And try to be understanding with Kim and Denise when they are aloof or cross.

Today's hand should present no problem to any of you readers or to the ordinary bridge player. The small slam wheels in if South can locate the queen of diamonds. You readers all see it in the West hand. The ordinary declarer doesn't see it, but the simple play is to finesse against West and he takes the simple play.

When the late David Bruce, who was life master number one, played it in the final round of the 1938 Vanderbilt he made no effort to make seven since the game was total points.

The first trick accounted for nine, 10, queen and ace of spades. Dave drew trumps with three leads while chucking two diamonds from dummy. Then he led the eight of spades. East took his king and played the king of clubs. Dummy's ace won. Dave discarded his last club on the jack of spades, ruffed a club, played his last two trumps while chucking the last spade and club from dummy.

East did his best by chucking his last two spades, but West had to throw a diamond somewhere along the way. Dave decided he only did this because he had nothing but diamonds in his hand, whereupon it was a simple matter to play West for the diamond queen.

Reagan Finds Schweiker Asset; Ford Warned of Liability

By UPI

While Ronald Reagan was finding his potential running mate an asset in the Northeast, some Republicans were telling President Ford they feel John Connally might be a liability on his ticket.

Reagan won four delegates in New Jersey, two in New York and one in Louisiana Thursday, in part because of his naming of liberal Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., as his vice presidential choice.

There also were indications that some of Illinois' eight uncommitted delegates were considering backing the Californian.

Buoyed by the new switches, Reagan said he thought the tide had turned and told reporters: "I think we can do it."

Reagan and Schweiker campaigned together in New York and New Jersey and move on to Pennsylvania today in search of more delegates.

PARTNERS — Schweiker (l) and Reagan.

But despite Reagan's biggest gains since the Schweiker announcement, Ford still held the edge in the tight battle for the Republican nomination.

Udall: N-Plants Poorly Secured

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional subcommittee says security of U.S. nuclear facilities is completely inadequate against terrorist attack.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House subcommittee on energy and the environment which held hearings on the security of nuclear installations, said Thursday most of the nuclear facilities are each protected by two men armed with .38-caliber pistols and shotguns.

That is no match for an attack by terrorist groups which Udall said even the Nuclear Regulatory Commission admits "might possess explosives, machine guns, anti-tank weapons and helicopters."

Udall and Rep. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., said in issuing a report on their hearings, that nuclear power plants are not adequately protected against sabotage which could result in "release of harmful quantities of radioactive substances into the environment."

Udall also said he was shocked to learn in a July 20 letter from NRC Chairman Marcus A. Rowden that security tests run at 15 facilities handling plutonium or enriched uranium found serious security problems at each.

Worse yet, Udall said, "a subsequent review found that seven of the 15 had continuing deficiencies despite the earlier investigation."

Udall also expressed doubt that present material accounting methods were adequate to detect if nuclear materials — sufficient to construct a bomb — were being stolen.

Rowden claimed the NRC had taken action whenever necessary in the past. "All of the various enforcement sanctions available to the NRC have been used in the past and, as necessary, they will be used in the future to obtain needed corrective action," he said.

But Udall and Tsongas apparently were unimpressed. They accused the NRC of failing "to make hard choices about security in the nuclear industry."

The changes brought the latest UPI tally for Ford to 1,120 delegates, 10 short of the number needed; while Reagan had 1,037, and there were 102 uncommitted.

Schweiker has lost Reagan some delegate support in the South — and a number of those delegates have said publicly they would like to see Connally on Ford's ticket.

But in Washington, Senate Republican Whip Robert Griffin of Michigan, one of Ford's closest political strategists and his floor manager at the convention, said Ford must weigh carefully the "pluses and minuses" in Connally's record.

Griffin joined other moderate Republicans, who, in recent days, have warned that Connally might be a liability because of his ties to the Nixon administration and the Watergate scandal. The former Texas governor was acquitted of bribery charges in the Watergate-related milk fund scandal.

Connally had supporters, too. Treasury Secretary William Simon said the Texan was his favorite for the post. Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter was back in Plains, Ga., with nothing on his schedule until he returns to Washington for more strategy talks next week.

But his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, was trying to keep peace on Capitol Hill between the Black Caucus, which wants fast action on a full employment bill, and the freshman class, which hopes any recorded votes on it will be put off until after the election.

After the Treaty of Alliance with France in 1778, Haiti, then the French colony of San Domingue, supported the American cause of independence from Britain. In 1779 at the battle of Savannah, 861 Haitian volunteers fought side by side with American troops and 34 Haitians lost their lives in this gallant effort. The World Almanac also reports that 14 of the 438 Haitian volunteers at the battle of Pensacola were killed in action.
